

LEGACY OF LOVE

TRUSTING GOD THROUGH THE UNKNOWN

Hagar ran away in bitterness, feeling discarded and forgotten by those around her, but God used her to reveal Himself as El Roi—the God who sees. He met her in the desert to prove that no one is ever truly invisible in His kingdom.

GENESIS 16:13

Leah and Rachel spent years in a "worth-war," competing for love and validation, but God used them to build the foundations of His people. He proved His blessing isn't a competition, but a gift for the unloved and the unseen alike.

GENESIS 29:31

Sarah doubted the impossible and tried to "help" God through her own logic, but God used her to prove His promises don't depend on our perfection or timing. He turned her cynical laugh into a song of joy, showing that nothing is too hard for Him.

GENESIS 18:14

Rebekah manipulated her family to force the outcome she wanted, but God used her to show that His plans are bigger than our messiest mistakes. He stayed faithful to His purpose, proving He can work through even the most broken family dynamics.
